What is Diwali?
 Diwali is the most important religious festival celebrated by followers of Hinduism. The Hindu religious holiday called Diwali (also spelled Divali) celebrates the new year. Diwali is a major holiday in India, but it is celebrated by many people living outside of India as well. The name Diwali means "row of lights." The holiday is often called the Festival of Lights. The festivities last for five days. The fourth day marks the start of the new year on the Hindu calendar. On the calendar used in the United States, Diwali falls in late October or early November. Diwali was celebrated on November 12th this year!
