

Dr. Buckley, a new faculty member at the University of Delaware, has her own non-profit (The Perry Initiative) that conducts outreach events. She is holding one such event in Wilmington, in August.

There is an incredible array of activities that the girls run through (learning about and “repairing” simulated bone, for example) during this event.
It is free, fun and thoroughly engaging.

I am more than thrilled to be able to share this information about the program and registration with you:

<http://perryinitiative.org/>

and registration:

<http://perryinitiative.org/events/perry-outreach-program-wilmington-delaware/>